The twenty-fifth annual Clerks' ball will probably not be held until the war is over. At a special meeting in the summer the date was changed from February to October of this year. This was done to avoid bad weather conditions which have been encountered, especially at the last annual ball. When the event does occur the Norway Clerks' Association plan to arrange a record breaker on this silver anniversary.

The maximum temperature Tuesday was close to 80 degrees, and dropped not below 60 during the evening. It was a beautiful day and one of those rare combinations seldom experienced even during Indian summer. Many in factories spoke of the heat as being oppressive.

Notice to Subscribers

It has become necessary to again call attention to "the ruling" or "order" of the Government regulating the affairs of individuals in extending credit on newspapers and other apparently minor affairs.

It makes little difference whether we like it or not, it must be obeyed and we submit as gracefully as possible to the stopping of every subscriber's paper that is not paid in advance. The order is drastic and out of the usual, but its war times and somehow the big bosses who have control of "conservation"—whatever that may mean—is insisting upon it, therefore we are compeled to stop sending you the Norway Advertiser unless it is paid for in advance.

If this space is marked, it shows that your paper is in arrears and we must have some money on it so as to conform to the orders of the Government.

Will credit such amount as you may send at the cash-in-advance rate of 12½ cents per month.

Should we maliciously, wilfully disobey and disregard this "ruling" or "order" our paper can be barred from the second class mail privilege which would spell ruin for us with a big R—hence come across with cash or its equivalent for such length of time as is convenient and in keeping with your finances.

You can send it direct to this office in Norway or hand it to our local correspondent in your vicinity and credit will be given and you and the Advertiser will be living up to the rules made and provided governing newspapers in war times.

The time limit of getting our list of subscribers on a war basis expires December 24th and let us hope that the present "European Unpleasantness" will be over before then. Whether it is or not our list must be in shape for official governmental inspection.

Universalist Notes.

Gate Accidentally Locked.

F. W. Sanborn: "In justice to the Albany Basins owner and my judgement Mother has come to the belief that my invitation to call was genuine. After finding the card and apples Mr. Sperring came to town and convinced all concerned that the gate was accidently locked and he was guilty of no intentional discourtesy.

This was pleasing to me and since then I have visited there and looked over the "Basins" which I last saw thirty odd years ago when Uncle Cyrus Kneeland owned the property."

The bearers were four of his neighbors, and members of the Odd Fellows: H. Arthur Robbins, Daniel W. Goodwin, Charles Gammon and Grant Abbott. Interment in Pine Grove Cemetery.

He was a life long resident of Norway and one of her most highly respected citizens. Nearly five weeks previous Mr. Pike suffered a paralytic shock, from which he did not rally.

He was the son of Luther F. and Adaline A. (Millett) Pike, born March 22, 1838. He received his education in the common schools of his home town, and at the Norway Liberal Institute. November 22, 1866, he was united in marriage with Sarah M. Whitehouse, also a native of Norway, and all their married life was lived at the girlhood home of Mrs. Pike, on the farm known to the older residents as the "Herring Farm," owned by her father, beautifully situated on Pike's Hill. Mrs. Pike passed away two years ago, October 24th. Mr. Pike made extensive improvements on the farm and was one of Norway's most prosperous farmers. He always took a prominent part in town affairs, holding town offices at different times, and was interested in the welfare of the town. Although 80 years of age, Mr. Pike had been remarkably active up to the time he was stricken a few weeks ago and looked and appeared much younger than the years tallied. He was well informed on the affairs of the day, and read with keen interest the daily news. He was the oldest member of Norway Lodge, I. O. O. F., which order he has been affiliated with since he was a young man. Religiously he was a Universalist, and politically a Democrat. Two sons and a daughter survive: S. Bion, who lives at the home farm; Clarence B., of Mansfield, Mass., and Katherine P., wife of Philip K. Bradbury of Norway. Also one grandson, Donald, son of Clarence, and one brother, A. L. F. Pike of Norway.

Mrs. Jennie Young, Gertrude Gardiner and Mrs. Hortense Gates, who have been spending the summer at their cottage on Pike's Hill, have returned to the village for the winter. They have had a fine garden, and among a large quantity of other vegetables harvested 25 bushels of potatoes.

Edwin Chick was at Dr. Cobb's hospital at Auburn, Sunday, to see Mrs. Chick, who is there for treatment for a mastoid abscess in her ear resulting from influenza. Mrs. C. W. Chick is caring for the baby, who is just getting up from influenza.

All services will be resumed at the Baptist church, Sunday, November 3rd. Sunday school at 2:30. Preaching service at 3:15, sermon by the pastor, G. H. Newton.

Rev. M. O. Baltzer attended the Conference of Congregational churches at East Sumner this week.

Beatrice Drake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Drake, consulted an oculist in Lewiston and has been fitted to glasses. She has suffered several months with eye trouble.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Noyes have arrived from Michigan and are well settled in their home on Crescent street. They were married at Charlevoix, Mich., on September 20 at the summer home of the bride, who was Mrs. Flora M. Lewis. Mr. Noyes is a well known business man, having a wide acquaintance in the state and in commercial centers, where F. H. Noyes Blue Stores have extensive dealings.

This amount of $319.92 is made up of the following items of profit:

One-half on 135 season tickets	$ 135.00
$1400.00 (not including war tax)	134.92
One-half total receipts in excess of $1400.00 (not including war tax	134.92

The several items of expense to the local association in running the season's Chautauqua are:

Rent of grounds	$ 15.00

The Oxford County board has sent out several questionaires this week to registrants 18 years of age and over 36 years.

The first meeting of the season of the Seneca club, postponed on account of the epidemic, will be held with Mrs. Haskell, Monday evening, Nov. 4. A patriotic program will be given, as was planned for the meeting a month earlier.

The Euterpean club's opening program, deferred from Oct. 7 on account of the epidemic, will be given Nov. 11. The hostesses are Mrs. Ida Briggs and Miss Dean, and the program will be given at Mrs. Briggs'. It will be that which was given in the club book for the October meeting, consisting of patriotic music in the first part, and the second part devoted to New England composers. The regular November program will be deferred until sometime in the spring.

The home visitation under the auspices of the several churches and Sunday schools, which was adjourned by the closing order of the board of health, will be carried out next Sunday afternoon, Nov. 3, according to the original plan. This is a joint canvass of the village to ascertain the church affiliations or preferences of the people of the place, and to endeavor to reach those who claim no such affiliation. It is only information that is asked for—nothing else, and all should be willing to give that cheerfully and fully. The workers will meet at Deering Memorial church at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and it is thought that the work can be completed in two hours.

A frankfort roast was enjoyed at Harpers Ledge during the harvest moon. Those in the party were Ruth Bolster, Merton V. Bolster, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Barrows, Bertha Wight, Merton Clifford, Nora Dunham, Pearl Bennett, Josie Foster, Harold Neil and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Twitchell.

Judge For Yourself

Which is Better—Try an Experiment or Profit by a Norway Citizen's Experience.

Something new is an experiment.
Must be proved to be as represented.
The statement of a manufacturer is not convincing proof of merit.
But the endorsement of friends is.
Now supposing you had a bad back,
A lame, weak, or aching one,
Would you experiment on it?
You will read of many so-called cures.
Endorsed by strangers from faraway places.
It is different when the endorsement comes from home.
Easy to prove local testimony.

E. C. Libby, Sanborn St., says: "I had backache a great deal and it annoyed me to do anything. My head ached frequently, too. I also noticed little specks before my eyes and my sight blurred. I used various medicines, but it was left for Doan's Kidney Pills to give me lasting results. Since using them, I have had no return of the complaint and I have great confidence in Doan's."

SUNSHINE AFTER RAIN.

We never miss the sunshine, until the shadows fall,
We never regret the bitter words, until gone beyond recall,
We never miss the laughter, until the eyes are wet,
We never miss our happiness, until love's bright sun has set,
We never miss the singing, until the birds have flown,
We never miss the blossoms until the spring has gone,
We never miss our joyousness, until sorrow bids us awake,
We never know we have a heart, until it begins to break.
Dear love, bring back the sunshine, my bitter words forget,
Bring back the old-time happiness, my eyes with tears are wet;
Bid springtime blossoms bloom again in the garden of my heart.

THE WHOLE OF LIFE

This is the whole of life,
To love each golden minute ere it slips
Into the gray of past;
To drink joy in with breathless sips
Till the last drop goes and then,
To have at least a smile upon the lips!
This is the whole of life,
To go into the battle with a song.
Joying in the fight;
To cry not though the night of waiting's long,
And crimson day brings but the wait again,
Or brings but petty triumphs, petty thrills or wrongs.
This is the whole of life,
To crush into your heart each purple day,
Keeping its sweetness there,
And straining in its bright hues all the gray,
To weave the years into a brilliant fabric,
To hold the brightest memories alway.

ENDURANCE

How much the heart may bear, and yet not break!
How much the flesh may suffer, and not die!
I question much if any pain or ache
Of soul or body brings our end more nigh;
Death chooses his own time; till that is sworn,
All evils may be borne.
We see a sorrow rising in our way,
And try to flee from the approaching ill;
We seek some small escape; we weep and pray;
But when the blow falls, then our hearts are still;
Not that the pain is of its sharpness shorn.
But that it can be borne.
We wind our life about another life;
We hold it closer, dearer than our own;
Anon it faints and ails in deathly strife,
Leaving us stunned, and stricken, and alone!
But ah! we do not die with those we mourn,—
This also can be borne.
Behold, we live through all things—famine, thirst,
Bereavement, pain; all grief and misery,
All woe and sorrow; life inflicts its worst
On soul and body—but we cannot die.
Though we be sick, and tired, and faint, and worn,
Lo, all things can be borne.

"GOD IS SO GOOD"

God is so good,
He hath bestowed,
The dearest treasure
That He could.
A little Babe,
With eyes so bright,
And pure, red lips
To kiss each night.
A little Babe
With smiles so rare,
A dimpled Babe
With soft, light hair.
A cooing cherub,—
To laugh and play
And make the world
One long, glad day.
His velvet cheeks
And hands so white;
His fat, pink feet
Are my delight.
What greater blessing,
If He would,
Could He bestow—
Our God so good!

Mrs Gladys (Frost) Swan.

FACT AND FANCY

By Abram Botts Crifin.

The Lion and the Unicorn

And now our Eagle's shrill toot horn
Alarms the Kaiserine,
And soon we'll know the facts; I ween—
Just what the Kaiser means to mean.
The old curmudgeon fixed the date;
To dine in fair Parse;
But after more than four years' wait
By counter-march in double-gait
He takes his meals in low estate—

CLEAR THE WAY FOR ESSENTIALS

It used to be that as long as a man was reasonably peaceable and not unreasonably lazy, the other folks did not bother much what he did.

But now times have changed. Now the same man must not only be reasonably busy, but he must be busy at a reasonably essential task, else along comes the government, taps him on the shoulder and tells him to move on and find a real job.

And so it is with the farmer in a measure. Gone are the good old days of winter when we used to play cards and drink apple cider, only stopping to eat dinner and feed the stock. Winter is a resting period no longer. It is a preparation time for the busy spring and summer, which is coming. And woe to those of us who do not prepare. We will find ourselves, when spring blossoms out, confronted with the task of hauling fertilizer, unloading lime, marketing wheat or corn or potatoes, and doing unmerous other tasks of the past, when we should be out in the fields doing things of the future

As It Should Be

Every husband can have good coffee if on some morning the coffee is a shade too brown to suit your taste do not scold about it; and, on every other morning when it is delicious say so. Try this way and you will find your coffee and everything else to your taste oftener; and besides, you will give the ones you ought to love best the sweetest consciousness that they are doing the work well, and giving satisfaction to the one, of all others, they most desire to please, thus inspiring them with renewed energy to strive for the merited reward of kind, appreciative words. And so kind an atmosphere of peace and sweet home happiness come to pervade the whole house, born and nurtured into beautiful, fragrant blossoming by your own kind words and deeds.

Getting His Number

Edith—Dick, dear, your office is in State street, isn't it?

Dickey—Yes, why.

Edith—That's what I told papa. He made such a funny mistake about you yesterday. He said he had been looking you up in Bradstreet.

The drawback about the man who sees things as they are is that he never likes the way they look.

ANDOVER

Hotel Burned

Bluemont Inn, a summer hotel equipped with about 50 sleeping rooms upstairs and comfortably furnished recreation parlors on the ground floor, was totally destroyed by fire, Sunday night. The flames were discovered at about nine o'clock and before midnight the place was in ruins.

Very efficient work on the part of the local fire company was all that saved several fine residences located on each side and across the street from the fire. The out-buildings of the Inn were also saved, but the entire four-story hotel and the long ell were lost.

The place is owned by Otis M. Richardson of Canton, who also runs the Pine-Wood Camps at Canton. He had recently closed the hotel for this year and left only yesterday, having been in town making arrangements for next season.

The building was valued at about $5,000 and is said to be partially insured. The cause of the fire is unknown, nor could it be determined in just what part of the building it started. When the department arrived the halls were practically filled with flames, which spread rapidly to the roof.

FRYEBURG

Helen Stuart of Bangor, who is teaching this year at Brewster Academy, Wolfboro, N. H., has been spending a few days at the Hastings cottage, Lower Kezar Lake, where she is the guest of Mary Hastings. Miss Stuart is a graduate of the University of Maine, and was last year the teacher of English at Fryeburg Academy. Brewster Academy was closed on account of the epidemic.

Mrs. Amos Leavitt

Inez, wife of Amos Leavitt, passed away, Wednesday, Oct. 23rd, after a few days' illness. She was born in North Turner about 50 years ago, daughter of Sylvester Delano and Ellen Vose Delano. One son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Delano Cecil, who passed away when a lad. Mrs Leavitt was a capable and lovable woman.

She was a member of Wilson Relief corps of North Turner, and the chaplain of the Maine State Relief corps, and was also a good worker in the Red Cross and the Universalist church. Mr. and Mrs. Leavitt were former residents of Canton, where they have many friends. Besides her husband, she is survived by a stepdaughter, Mrs. Henry Glidden, of Strong in whose family she had been caring for the sick.

Helen Pauline Seike

Helen Pauline Seike passed away Tuesday night, Oct. 22, at a hospital in Philadelphia, where she went some time ago to train for a nurse. She had been ill about two weeks but had recovered enough to be at work, when a telegram was received by her aunt, Mrs. William T. Gillespie, informing them of her death.

She was 26 years of age. She made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie and was a young lady of fine character and pleasing personality. She was the picture of health, and her many friends can hardly realize that she has passed on.

Miss Seike was a graduate of Canton high school, class of 1917, and valedictorian of the class. She was accomplished in many ways, and will be much missed.

TO THE FARMERS OF MAINE

"May I ask your attention to the United War Work Campaign, November 11-18, to raise the sum of $170,500,000 for the benefit of the boys in the service. While this seems a large sum, yet it is only a small amount to each individual. There is nothing we are not willing to do for our boys, who are offering us their lives to secure for the peoples of the whole world, those civil liberties which we now enjoy, and which were won for us by generations of our ancestors on many a bloody field of battle. I know very well your patriotism in the past years, how much you have been willing to sacrifice and have sacrificed. I also know how fully you appreciate the needs of our boys, and I understand you wish to have them made as comfortable in body, mind, and soul, as it is possible, under the trying conditions of their lives, and to stimulate them to maintain the morale of our army and navy, so necessary in this tremendous struggle.

The United War Work Campaign is a cooperative work of the seven great organizations as follows:—National War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A., War Work Council of the Y. W. C. A., Catholic War Council (K. of C.), Jewish Welfare Board, War Camp Community Service, American Library Association, Salvation Army, and I believe each individual and each organization among you will contribute liberally and promptly to this fund." says Commissioner of Agriculture, John A. Roberts.

Judge C. F. Whitman has compiled a list numbering some forty anniversaries which he considers important mile stones in American history. On these dates he never fails to hang out the stars and stripes as a fitting tribute to the great minds who accomplished things, to make our republic a power. One event not generally featured in our histories, occurs on Nov. 21, which commemorates a signing the compact of government in the Mayflower cabin, before the Pilgrim fathers set foot upon the new continent. This was in the year 1620. Judge Whitman considers this occurrence the foundation stone upon which our government rests. The meaning is brought home more forcibly as he is a direct descendent of these signers, who afterward landed from the first three ships. Judge Whitman is justly proud of his membership in the John Alden Society that is sifting true historical facts from the mass of sentimental stories surrounding our pioneers.

Soldiers' Letters

The following letter was written by George J. Hudson now in France to his mother, Mrs. Villa Cummings of Bryant's Pond:

Sept. 20, 1918.

Dear Mother.—I will write you a few more lines today as it is raining. I got your letter you sent July 30th yesterday, and was sure pleased to get it. It was the first one addressed over seas I have got since I landed.

Everything is about the same as ever. I am well and feeling fine. We are driving them to beat the band. I was in one of the biggest drives of the war. The Germans ran like sheep. They are getting enough of it.

I am in hopes it will end sometime, as I want to see the U. S. A. once more. It will look good to us all, you bet.

We are surely seeing France, oh, yes! seeing shell torn fields, woods and towns, shot to pieces by Americans, sometimes it is French gunners, but we don't care as long as the places are captured. I do not know when you will get this letter, but I guess it will be a month or more in getting over there.

It is raining over here and has been for a week. They say it rains most of the time in the winter. The mud is something fierce. I heard that three marines captured 300 Germans in the big drive. They simply gave up. Of course I could tell you more but it might not get by the censor so there is no use in writing it.

I am writing this letter in what used to be a German dugout, but now is in the hands of the U. S. A.. Some dugout. There are dugouts 40 feet deep. When we get through with the German they will know it does not pay to fool with Uncle Sam. Yes, you can send me papers if you will. I would be pleased, as papers from the States and home are very few. Well guess I will close and start this letter going.

From your loving son,

Private George J. Hudson, 1,057,891, 43rd Balloon Company, A. E. F.

A letter written by Clarence W. McGown to his mother, Mrs. W. W. McGown of Gorham, N. H., formerly of this vicinity, who is in the active service with the American Expeditionary Forces in France, follows:

Dear Mother:—Just a line to let you know I am all right and having a good time hope you are the same. I haven't got a letter from you since I have been here in France. I have written you three or four times, but don't know whether you get them or not, but don't worry about me. I am all right aren't doing any fighting yet.

* * * * *

Dear Marm:—Just a few lines to let you know that I am well and enjoying myself pretty well, and having a lot to to do. I am in a small town somewhere in France. The Boche airplanes come over most every night and make us a visit, but they don't stay long. They drive them off with the air craft guns. We carry our gas masks and tin helmets with us all the time in case they should shoot a gas shell over. We aren't a great ways from the front line, France. I should say it was about as far as it is from Gorham to Berlin. We can hear the guns and see the smoke sometimes. I haven't been in the trenches yet, but can't tell when I'm liable to go. I got a letter the other day from George written the 18th of June. I haven't got any from any one else. I have seen some of the towns that the Germans blew up, and have slept in the houses with one part of the building all blown out. This is a pretty country. I should say the climate was about like that at home, but you don't see any big mountains like you do in New Hampshire, but it is more like in Maine. You can see off a long ways. The towns are all built in the valley. You wouldn't know there was a town till you get almost into it. Every town has one or two churches.

Well it is not so bad over here as you folks at home imagine. We get enough to eat, and our beds are on the floor. There is something about the life that I like. It is like camping out. Of course I'll be glad when the war is over. I think we've got the Hun on the run and I hope we can keep it up. I wouldn't give old Gorham for any part of France.

It is hard to write when you don't know what you can say or what you can't. I stayed in a dugout last night about 25 feet under ground running a switch board; got to go back pretty quick, three shifts, 8 hours each.

Well I will call it off this time. I am writing in the Y. M. C. A.. I tell you the Y is a great thing for the boys over here. I saw Mr. Nutter of the Berlin, N. H., Y. M. C. A. over here. I went into the Y to buy some candy and the first look I got of him I thought it was Nutter so I asked him his name. I tell you I was some surprised to see him. I didn't get a chance to talk with him for we left the next morning and I didn't see him again.

Well, remember me to all the folks. I am hoping to be with you before long Don't worry about me. I am having a good time.

OUR SERVICE And What it Means to You

We Have a Joint Interest in This Community

And We Wish to Join With You in Every Way to Promote the Communities' Interests

In a sense, this community is like a farm—it pays according to the way in which it is treated.

The successful farmer co-operates with his farm.

Knowing that certain soil elements are necessary to healthy crop growth, he sees to it that these elements are maintained.

The same principle holds good in community development.

Our community is composed of two closely-related elements—town and country.

They are both essential to healthy community growth. Neglect or mistreatment of either of them by the other affects both—it injures the whole community. Both elements must be maintained.

Accomplishing this is simply a matter of sincere co-operation among all of us in this community.

Our idea of our own part to play for community good in a business way is—

To sell only such implements as have the quality to give high grade results in the field.

To consider good performance by our implements as a part of our obligation.

To sell every implement at a fair price.

To practice the square deal towards each and every customer.

On this basis we invite the co-operation of every farmer in this community.

We still have in stock nearly two cars of these shingles that we are selling at the price of a year ago. The cost is but little higher than ordinary wooden shingles. Having from two to four shingles in a strip, they can be laid much cheaper and are more durable besides making a much more ornamental roof, resembling tile. What is much more important, they are so slow burning as to be practically fireproof. A wood shingle roof is a firetrap and is not allowed in many localities governed by fire regulations. Now is the time to lay these shingles before cold weather. When they are gone, there will be no more at the present price.

He was a graduate of Bridgton Academy having completed the four years course in June, 1918. He was a great favorite with his school mates where he was familiarly known as "Noisy." He was always of a cheerful and sunny disposition both at home and abroad.

It was a great comfort to mother and son that she could be with him and minister to his needs during his last sickness which he bore with out a murmur being always the same cheerful, smiling boy to the last, or as long as consciousness remained. Had he lived until Dec. 17 he would have been twenty-one years of age. The many friends of the family in the community expressed their sympathy for the family and regards for the deceased by a beautiful floral tribute. There were others from his class in Bridgton Academy, from the family and many friends.

HOW TO USE GREEN WOOD AND COAL

The fuel administrator received a letter from a man who learned how to extend his coal by the use of green wood and at the same time run his hot water heating plant easily and satisfactorily.

"Pound for pound, dry wood has about half the heat value of coal, and a cord of hard wood is equivalent to a ton of coal. Foreseeing a probable coal shortage and inability to get our actual supply, we used no coal at all in my home during the summer, substituting wood and kerosene. When it became necessary to start the heat (hot water), we used nothing but wood up to Dec. 10, and still kept the house comfortable, even keeping a fire in the heater all night by filling it up between 9 and 10 P. M. During the coldest days it was only necessary to fill the heater up in the morning, at noon, in the evening and at bed time. The wood used was practically green mixed wood of moderate size.

"We have laid in an ample supply of this wood and as the fuel situation became more acute adopted the following practice: The fire is shaken in the morning until just a faint light shows in the ash pit. A layer of wood is then packed in as closely as possible on top of the hot coal and five or six inches deep. The wood is then covered with a few shovelfuls of coal filling the fire pot full. The draughts are then kept open until the radiators are sufficiently warm. The draughts are then set to where experience has shown the desired heat will be maintained. Ordinarily the fire is not disturbed again till night, when the same procedure is repeated and the fire is in condition for the night. The charge of tory results only when the coal dealer supplies them, accidently or otherwise, with a grade of fuel that fits their particular draught conditions."

The hot coals drying and igniting the wood and keeping the cold air from rushing up through the wood fire, explains why a good economical fire is maintained. Why a few shovelfuls of coal last so long under these conditions, is not so clear, but it is a fact. For home use birch sticks of a moderate size and having a large proportion of bark, burn the most readily of any non-resinous green wood. Spruce, fir, maple and beech will make good fire while green, if a bed of hot coals is maintained on the grate. Of course, dry kindlings are necessary to readily start a green wood fire.

"If a wood fire burns too freely it is only necessary to check the draught more than when burning coal. This is probably the greatest common difficulty with the average person in burning fuel they are not used to. They use the same draught for all funnels and get satisfactory results only when the coal dealer supplies them, accidently or otherwise, with a grade of fuel that fits their particular draught conditions."

Prof. W. R. Chapman has announced the dates for the postponed Portland Maine Musical Festival, which will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 11, 12, and 13.

Howard E. Tyler of Bethel was reported wounded in the Friday casualty list.

JOSEPH ANDREWS' LETTERS

The following letter was written on Mr. Andrews' last visit to Maine.

Dear Advertiser:—Before leaving for Bridgton I wish to slip over to West Fryeburg and report one more call. On Saturday evening August 12th, with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Andrews, I went to call with them on Mr. and Mrs. John Andrews on Fagand St. Not finding them at home we drove back to the home of Walter Lewis where we spent a very pleasant evening in the company of Walter's two aunts, Miss Betsey Farrington, his housekeeper, and Mrs. Sarah Farrington Wiley of Salem, Mass., who was visiting with them. Mrs. Wiley told me that she had read many of my letters in the Advertiser and that I had failed to mention her name in the roll call of the scholars in my write up of the West Fryeburg school in the winter of 1866-7, adding that she and Mary Andrews attended that winter. I soon convinced her that she was mistaken, for I boarded at the Andrews' home that winter and know that Mary did not attend the home school, but I rather think that she did attend the academy school at the village. I have thought however of one name that I did miss, that of Etta Smart one of the older girls. Somehow I got her name mixed with that of her youngest sister and wrote Sarah instead of Etta.

I do not remember to have met Mrs. Wiley but once before and that was 50 years ago when as a bright and winsome young lady I met her at a party given at the Andrews' home by Mary Andrews and I wonder if she too did not attend the village school that same winter, for it was the practise of most of the ambitious young men and women when they graduated from the country school to round out their education by attending the historic old Fryeburg academy. As I was not sure of the names of the two ladies referred to, I wrote to a friend in West Fryeburg about that and other matters and received in part the following reply: Those two ladies at Walter Lewis's were sisters to Shure F. Lewis, Betsy Farrington married William Wiley and lives at Salem, Mass., Betsy never married and has lived quite a number of years with Walter, her nephew. Mrs. Sarah Wiley broke her hip while in Salem looking for a rent for the winter, so she has been in the hospital since, and at one time the doctor thought she never would recover, I think now she is coming out all right. Mr. Burbank is quite bad off at times. At times he was all used up with rheumatism. Fred Taylor looked after him. Mr. David Hill has died. He was sick but a day or two. Mrs. Hill has gone to stay with her niece.

Fifty years! My, how the years slip by. But while life and reason last, that winter of 1866-7 passed at the Andrews' home and in the West Fryeburg school room with Calvin Lewis and Shure Farrington as teachers, and with a lively bunch of about thirty bright eyed boys and girls as scholars, will remain one of the bright pages in the history of my life.

The old families were then all intact. Osborn Charles, Uncle John Webster, Abraham Andrews, Joseph Shirley, Thomas Hutchins, Benjamin McKeen, Caleb Hardy, and his son-in-law James Meserve, Jonathan Hardy, Richard Colby, George Ballard,—Smart, James Colby, Cap, Henry Hutchins and the Farringtons and Walkers, all of which have answered the last call and their places taken by at least some of my old schoolmates who are the grandfathers and grandmothers of to-day.

But I must hie me back to Pottle's Hill in Lovell, where under almost the same identical conditions as four years ago, I take a farewell loof of mountain, lake and valley, say good bye to my old friend and hostess, and with my friend and school-mate, A. M. Pottle, with the self-same old faithful family horse and buggy, drive down the hill and out on the road towards Bridgton town.

We stopped for a little roadside chat at the Daniel Woodbury home, with Mrs. Woodbury, nee Heald, and her son and daughter. Here I missed the warm hand clasp and cheery voice of Daniel Woodbury, who had passed beyond some two years before. Fifty years and more ago the three Woodbury families, Enoch, Aaron, and William, whose farms adjoined, ranked amongst Sweden's most progressive and leading citizens. Judge Enoch Woodbury was a man of more than usual ability, and ranked high as a Judge, business man, and public speaker. In 1831 my half brother, Stephen Andrews, married Martha Woodbury of Sweden and lived in Lovell village and with his brother, Abraham Andrews, kept store for a number of years. The fine old Andrews home is still standing and looks well kept and prosperous. Maryann Woodbury, a sister of Martha, a dress maker by trade, lived with them. Stephen and his wife both died in the early fifties, and their daughter Martha and her aunt, Miss Woodbury, lived alone for several years, until the latter died, when she married her second cousin, Dr. Edwin Ballard, who died some 15 years ago. She is now living in North Dakota with her son and daughter.

My half brother, Abraham Andrews, also won one of Sweden's fair daughters for his bride, Lydia, daughter of Capt. Benjamin Webber. Aunt Lydia as we all called her, was a noble christian woman and she helped to raise up eleven children who were far above the average in education, morals, and character. While Abraham and Stephen Andrews won Sweden girls for their brides, William Powers, a bright young Sweden farmer, retaliated by marrying two of West Fryeburg's handsome, black-eyed girls, half sisters of Abraham and Stephen Andrews and also half sisters of my own. In 1834 he married Mary Andrews to whom seven children were born. His wife died in 1850 and he married second her sister, Caroline E. Andrews, and made their home, as I understand, on the old Homestead farm in Sweden, until a few years before the war when he sold, and bought a farm at South Bridgton, where I and my sister first visited them. Mr. Powers went as a volunteer to the civil war, and died in the service in 1863 and was brought back and buried in the Sweden Cemetery near Sweden Corner, beside his wife and four of his children. A few years after his death the farm was sold and all the family moved to Wisconsin and in 1873 to Dakota. Mrs. Powers died about thirteen years ago and is buried at Hurley, S. D. Andie Powers sold for $30,000, his fine farm near Hurley a few years ago and now owns a large stock ranch near Wasta, S. D.

Viola P. Fessenden is living with a daughter at San Diago, Cal., Elizabeth, wife of E. P. Fitch died in the summer of 1916 and is buried at San Deigo, Cal., as reported at the time in the Advertiser.

Between 1855-65 my sister and I, in our annual visits to our relatives in South Bridgton and our cousins, the Coopers and Ayers in Naples, passed somewhere in the Sweden hills, the home of James Holden, a brother of Luther Holden who then lived in West Fryeburg. For years he had charge of a stallion, and often stayed over night at our house near Lovell Center. At the time Call McKeen was murdered at North Lovell about 1860, I was at his funeral. It was held at the large Coffin barn and an immense crowd was present. Mrs. McKeen dressed in deep mourning seemed to be a sincere mourner, as she sat with bowed head and holding her handkerchief to her eyes. Mr. Holden told me that he was of an inquiring turn of mind and determined to find out whether her eyes were wet or dry, so when the crowd serged forward to view the corpse, he watched his chance as he passed her, and poked her with his elbow, and he said that she peaked up over her handkerchief in a spiteful way, and her eyes were as dry as his. I was not personally acquainted with McKeen, but I had the impression that although poor, he was an honest man.

It was told that a few days before his death he bought a small bill of goods of a village merchant on time and said, "If I live I will pay you on a certain date or day which he named. When the merchant heard of his tragic death he went at once and crossed the account off his book.

I was told that Mrs. McKeen married a wealthy man in Portland and some one in Lovell told me that she was dead and that she died a painful, lingering death from cancer.

Although I have been a long time telling it, Mr. Pottle and I arrived safely at the Russell Hamblin home in Bridgton, in time for a good warm dinner and received a cordial welcome from Mr. Hamblin, and his two faithful housekeeper friends, Grace and Nellie Whitney. My three days' visit at Bridgton was almost an exact repetition of my visit there four years ago and I cannot add much to what I wrote then. Hamblin & Ingalls, Wholesale and retail dealers in hay, flour, grain, coal, etc., are one of the big firms of Bridgton and do a large business. Two years ago Mr. Hamblin and the two Miss Whitneys went by special train with a Masonic excursion, and had the time of their lives visiting the two great World's Expositions at San Deigo and San Francisco, and many other of the great show points of the Far West.

One day he took me in his auto to So. Bridgton, and came after me in the evening. While I spent the day at the home of Mrs. Sarah Berry. Mrs. Berry sold the old home farm nearly five years ago, and has bought a home in the little village of South Bridgton. Her brother, Charles Fitch, who was with her on my two former visits, had gone to western South Dakota, where he and his wife are enjoying the experience of pioneering and opening up a new farm far out on the prairies. Some eight or ten miles I believe from the railroad town of Owanka on the C. N. W. railroad. I met Mrs. Berry two years ago at the home of her brother, E. P. Fitch at San Deigo, Cal. She had made the trip alone from Maine and stopped off near New York City to visit her nephew, John Fitch. From San Diego she went all alone to San Francisco to take in the Exposition and then home by the way of Seattle and western Canada, where she visited with her old friend, Fannie Fessenden.

Wales & Hamblen are two of the live wires of Bridgton and do a large business in the hardware line. John Hamblen has an ideal home. His house built in a sightly location is one of the finest in town. His family, consisting of his wife, his son Morris, his daughter Margaret, and his sister Gertrude, one of the village teachers, were all at home. Russ Hamblen also has a fine and pleasant home, and seems day by day, by his cheery ways, to spread joy and sunshine all along the pathway of his own and other lives.

I called upon Judge Walker and found him wearing his 82 years with almost boyish cheerfulness, while his nephew Edwin Walker, sightless for more than 30 years, greeted me with a smile, and seems to find much in life worth living for.

In the fall of 1870 I made my first visit back to Maine and early the next spring I started on my return trip to Iowa. At that time I had two half brothers living in Illinois, one in Pennsylvania, one in New York City, and a half sister living in Neponset, Mass., and friends living in Portland and Cape Elizabeth, so I planned for visits all along the line. I wrote to my brother, Solomon in New York of my intended visit and received a cordial invitation from him to do so, also directions how to find him. It must have been the last of February that I started. I made my visits in Portland, Cape Elizabeth and with my sister at Neponset near Boston. I was to have started for New York on Monday morning, and my brother was to meet me at the train. But owing to a heavy snow storm I did not start until Tuesday morning, and although the storm raged Tuesday I arrived safely in New York city to find 18 inches of snow, and no one at the train to meet me. The train stopped at 4th avenue and 42nd street and my brother lived on 6th avenue near 42nd street. But I ran the gauntlet of a dozen loud mouthed hackmen and was not long in reaching the comforts of his pleasant cozy home.

I had never met this brother before, and as he was 69 years old and I about 27 I thought that he might tire out in our jaunts about the city. But I was not used to the pavements, and he came nearer wearing me out than I him. I visited with him for six days and each day we were on the go from morning until night. The weather was warm and the snow melted fast and thousands of men were busy with teams earning big wages carting the snow from streets and sidewalks. They had no horseless carriages, and the only public conveyances about the city were horse cars, hacks and transfer busses.

One of our long car rides was out to Central Park, being away out in the suburbs of the city, and just beginning to be improved. Another was to the Brooklyn Ferry, where we crossed over to Brooklyn and stopped for a little while to watch the workman, who with great derricks were just beginning one of the large piers, the first start of the great Brooklyn suspension bridge over East river. Then we boarded another horse car and went to the entrance of beautiful Greenwood cemetery, one of the most noted in the land and spent the balance of the forenoon in wandering over its 640 acres of well kept lawns, even then white with tomb stones. It is said that now 325,000 persons are buried there In the afternoon we again boarded a horse car and continued on several miles to old Fort Hamilton, at that time one of the principal defenses of New York Harbor. A soldier kindly showed us around the grounds. A big twenty inch smooth bore Dalgreen cannon was mounted in the fort, and nearby a large one story house stood with all its windows boarded up. The soldier told us that the first time they fired the big gun, the concussion broke out every window pane in the house. That cannon was a wonder in its day, yet it only had a range of five miles.

On Sunday we visited Plymouth church, Brooklyn, and listened to the matchless Henry Ward Beecher. On the way to the church we inquired the way to Beecher's church, and was told to follow the crowd, which we did and soon entered the church and were given seats in the front gallery. The big barn like structure was filled to its capacity and hundreds were standing in the passage ways. That was one of the red letter days in the history of my life, for I had seen and heard Beecher, America's greatest pulpit orator.

My brother's daughter, Nellie Andrews, married a man who was an actor in Booth's Theatre, and one day Mr. Decker furnished us with two three dollar tickets to one of the evening plays. That evening closed another red letter day for me for I had seen and listened to a play, the chief actor of which was Edwin Booth, America's greatest tragedian, and in New York's most popular theatre. Edwin Booth, although a brother of the assassin was a true and loyal friend of Lincoln and the union, and no one grieved more than he over the sad and tragic death of Lincoln.

Other places that we visited were Coopers Institute, the Y. M. C. A. building, which cost $100,000, Bliss great wholesale seed store, and most interesting of all the New York Tribune building and headquarters, with its wonderful printing establishment and great printing press. In those days the Tribune, with Horace Greely as its editor and founder, was the political pathfinder and guide of all good Republicans. We visited the editorial room hoping to meet the great editor, but he was out and we did not have the pleasure of making his acquaintance. A few months later my brother, Abraham wrote me from Fryeburg that he had been on a visit to New York, and had found Greeley in and had a pleasant chat with him. Other places of note that we visited were the Astor house, Fifth avenue's high toned hotel. The Vanderbilt mansion, Trinity church, the Tombs, and the Sub-treasury building on Wall street. But the most wonderful show place of all the skyscrapors of those days were the two mammoth dry goods stores of A. T. Stewart, one wholesale and the other retail, one seven and the other eight stories high and each covering one acre of ground with 15 acres of flooring in the two buildings. Mr. Stewart was called the Merchant Prince of New York City. I understood that he came to this country a poor boy from Ireland and made all of his great wealth in this country. At the time of the Irish famine it is said that he loaded a ship with provision and sent it at his own expense to his starving countrymen in Old Ireland. During the Civil War, if I remember rightly he made a cash donation of $100,000 to the Sanitary Commission, the Red Cross of those days. But in small affairs he was counted stingy so my brother told me, and illustrated it with the following incident. One of his own clerks was taken sick and a subscription paper was circulated among the clerks for his relief. They took it to Mr. Stewart to start, thinking he would be a liberal giver. He signed just one dollar, while among the clerks none gave less than five dollars. Mr. Stewart died many years ago, but his bones were not allowed to rest in peace, for the news papers of that date reported his remains had been stolen and concealed for a long time until the demand of the body snatchers for a large sum of money had been complied with.

After my six days' visit in Little Old New York, then as now the Metropolis of the Nation I started west again. I did not stop at Pittsburg to visit my brother as I had planned, as he lived a long distance and it required a long stage coach ride to reach him. I went directly to Marshall, Clark Co., Ill., where my brothers, Dean and Simon, lived, with whom I visited six days, that being the limit of my stop over permit.

From Marshall I went south to St. Louis, then west to Kansas City, Mo., then north to Council Bluffs, then east fifty miles to Atlantic, Iowa, and then home to Exira, fifteen miles distant. Solomon, the half brother of mine, was born in Lovell in 1802, in 1823 he married a North Bridgton girl, Sibyl Ann Farnsworth. He and his brother, George W., were in the mercantile business in that town until about 1840 They had two children, George and Ellen. He moved to New York City in 1861, where he held several positions in the United States Custom House and Post Office He told me that at the time of the New York city draft riots in 1863 he disguised himself and mingled with the crowd on the street and learned that they planned to attack the New York Tribune building. He went to the Tribune office and reported, and vigorous preparations were made for the defence of this staunch Republican organ, a part of which was a large quantity of boiling water to be thrown upon the murderous, drunken, rebel sympathizers, who for several days held the city in its grip, but fortunately for all, the attack was not made.

At the time of my visit the son, George, was a prominent lawyer in the city. We called on him once in his office and found him a very busy man. H. F. Andrews of Exira, Iowa, in his history of the Andrews family has this to say of one of Maine's honored sons, Hon. George P. Andrews, born at North Bridgton, Me., Sept. 29, 1835, entered Yale college in 1854, graduated in 1858, class orator by election of his class. Came to New York City in 1859, studied law, admitted to the bar in 1860, held the office of assistant U. S. District Attorney for the southern district of New York for about six years. He practiced law for about seven years, he held the office of assistant council to the corporation of New York City about ten years, held the office of council of the corporation for one year and seven months. In the fall of 1883 he was elected justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York for a term of 14 years, commencing June 1, 1884. He has been dead now several years.

Should any readers of the Advertiser plan to visit New York for the first time, I would advise them to stay two weeks at least. If they wish to economize their spending money, buy a twenty-five cent guide book and engage a safe room in some good hotel at one dollar a day and up. Patronize the five cents a piece lunch counter and start out to view the sights and I should judge that September and October to be the best months to go.

New York is indeed a wonderful city. It has solved the smoke problem in a large degree by electrifying most if not all of the railroads that enter the city. It has solved the transportation question with its wonderful system of tunnels, subways and elevated and surface cars and great suspension bridges. Its fast increasing population is cared for by annexing most of the adjoining country, and with its great skyscraper buildings has a good sized portion of the upper air.

On Thursday morning I bade my kind hostess and the little girls goodbye and with Mr. Fitch went back to the city, where he piloted me to the great Pennsylvania depot, where I boarded a train and was soon on my way to Washington, going through Philadelphia and Baltimore and arriving in Washington a little after noon From the great union depot, which is a very fine and grand building I walked about a mile to the capitol. After viewing the sights for a while I walked down Pennsylvania avenue, about two miles to the Harrington Hotel, where I paid two dollars for a room for the night and settled down for a quiet rest.

A little way from the hotel is the house where Lincoln died. It is a three story and basement brick building, the room in which Lincoln died is on the first floor and that room and the one back of it contains the great Old Royal Lincoln Museum The rooms are in charge of old soldiers and an admission fee of twenty-five cents is charged. It is well worth visiting and I spent a half hour in looking through the rooms. I found living here even cheaper than in New York for at the restaurant that I chanced to patronize they gave free coffee with a ten cent order, and my lunches only cost me ten cents each.

The next day, Friday, I was out bright and early, and put in a strenuous day, walking and sight seeing. I first visited the Washington monument and went to the top in the big elevator whose capacity is about thirty individuals. In returning I walked down the winding stairway at my leisure Other interesting places that I visited were the Army and Navy building, Smithsonian Institute, United States Museum, the Congressional Library, White House and the grand old Capitol Building, said by experts to be the finest building of its kind in the world The White House with its various parks and surroundings is very grand. The house is two story with basement and attic The upper story is used for the family residence and is not open for inspection The east room or state parlor used for receptions is 40 feet wide and 82 feet long and with a ceiling 22 feet high The blue room, oval in shape, is the presidents reception room. There is a green room and a red room and the State dining room, where three big State dinners are given each season to the Diplomatic Corps, to the Cabinet and the dinner to the Supreme Court. After a busy day of sight seeing I returned to my hotel and enjoyed another good night's rest.

Saturday morning I boarded a car and went on a pilgrimage to that dear old historic place, Mount Vernon. I spent about two hours about the grounds and buildings. The place is in charge of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association and an admission fee of 25 cents is charged. The fine old Colonial Mansion with its many out buildings, which include dining room and kitchen, negro quarters, stables and carriage house, all reminders of plantation days a hundred years ago.

Down the steep hillside perhaps forty rods away, and dimly visable through the forest trees, glides the waters of the grand old river forever hurrying onward to the sea. A path leads from the mansion down the hill. Part way down and some little distance to the left is the old Washington tomb. It is said that this old tomb was entered in 1831 and a skull was taken which the robber thought was that of Washington, but was not. A new and more secure tomb was then made ready and the remains re-interred. In 1837 John Strothers of Philadelphia, having chiseled two sarcophagi, each from a single block of marble, presented them for the purpose and the remains of Washington and Martha, his wife, were intrusted to their final keeping The key to the vault was then thrown into the Potomac river The tomb is a plain brick structure with an arched gateway in front and closed by a heavy grated iron gate, through which the two marble sarcophagi containing the remains are plainly visable; Within the vault the remains of forty members of the Washington, Curtis and related families.

I next took the car back to the beautiful Arlington National Cemetery, where in this bivouac of the dead "The muffled drum's sad roll has beat the soldiers' last tattoo" are sleeping more than 20,000 of the nation's heroic dead, in rank from the common soldier to the great commander of fleets and armies. From Arlington I went direct to the Grand Union Station, and near there, late in the afternon I took an electric car and went east about ten miles to a little station called "The Bells" where I hunted up one of my old South Dakota friends with whom I visited over Sunday. Mr. Wormwood moved from South Dakota about twenty-five years ago, where he bought a 160 acre farm and won a bright Virginia girl for his bride. They have two handsome, winsome daughters about 16 and 18 years of age. He has a fine farm with a first class electric car line running along the front. He raises wheat, corn, potatoes, cattle and hogs. His main crop is potatoes, of which he raises two crops a year, an early spring crop and a late fall crop. It was the early part of October when I was there and his ten or twelve acres of potatoes were in full bloom. It seemed as though every hill and every vine had a large bunch of bright purple flowers, and presented as pretty a sight as I ever saw. He told me that he did not harvest his fall potatoes until a few days after the first hard freeze, usually in November At present prices he ought to make a small fortune out of his last fall's fine potato crop.

On Sunday he took me for a walk and to call on one of his near neighbors, a Mr. Bells, for whom the town was named I suppose. This man made a specialty of raising tobacco, of which he has five acres of extra fine plants, so he said. His barn was filled from floor to ridgpole with the big tobacco leaves hung up to dry and cure before being pressed and packed. He was expecting to get war prices for this crop.

On Monday morning I went back to Washington city, where I boarded a train on the B. & O. and enjoyed a day light ride through West Virginia to Parkersburg and across the Ohio River to Marietta about ten miles distant. The ride through Harpers Ferry and through the mountains and tunnels of West Virginia is a pleasant and romantic one. I arrived home about nine in the evening and found the folks all well, thus ending my seventh visit to my old home in Maine, and the closing story of my journey.

"Some day I'll wander back again, to where the old home stands,
Beneath the old tree down the lane, afar in other lands;
Its humble cot shall shelter me from every care and pain,
And life be sweet as life can be, when I am home again.

Some day I'll wander back again to scenes so dear to me,
To hear her voice in soft refrain beside my mother's knee;
To live once more those golden hours of joyous, merry play,
No thorns, but only sweetest flowers, there in life's merry May.

Some day I'll wander back again to hearts so kind and true,
Where gentle faces still remain in memory's cherished view.
No more my wayward feet shall roam life's troubled pathway o'er,
But in the love and light of home, shall rest for evermore."

Joseph Andrews.

MANUFACTURERS TO GET ONLY 25 PER CENT SUGAR

Must Give Army, Navy and War Organizations Preference—New Rules Save Sugar

Orono, Maine, October—According to announcement made by the Food Administration restrictions upon the use of sugar by manufacturers will be even more rigid in November and December than in recent allotments. Federal Food Administrator Leon S. Merrill has been advised from Washington that sugar allotments for household use will be held rigidly to two pounds per person per month and that there will be further restrictions for manufacturers.

Soft drink manufacturers will be given only 25 per cent of the amount of sugar normally required in their business. This cuts in half the amounts they were entitled to use in the months of July, August, September, and October. Ice cream manufacturers will come under the same restrictions, receiving only one-fourth of the amount of sugar normally required. Practically all manufacturers of beverage syrups, confections, chewing gum, chocolate, cocoa, cough drops, malted milk, syrups and molasses, soda water, adulterated honey and similar articles, will be cut to 50 per cent of the average monthly use of sugar from July 1st to December 31st, 1916 and 1917, combined.

Candy and chocolate manufacturers are being instructed to give preference to the Army, Navy, Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus, and Salvation Army. Sugar needed to care for these orders, should come out of their regular allotment, except when furnished for shipment overseas.

FINISH THE JOB RIGHT.

"Finish the job right!" That was the reply of the American fighting men to the Americans back home and to the whole world in response to Teutonic peace efforts. They have taken the peace calls as a signal for the Allies to continue to fight harder than ever.

Lately we have heard much of what the housewife did in the way of making it possible to feed the Allies last year. Before the war the United States had almost ceased to be a food exporting nation. In the past year, the diligent conservation of food by the American housewife, however, made it possible for America to send more than eleven million tons of food to Europe.

This is a splendid victory for the housewife. But it should in no way serve to relax her efforts in conserving food in the coming year. It should rather be, as the peace offer is to our boys, a spur to greater determination to win the goal.

During the coming year we must send seventeen and one-half million tons of food across the Atlantic. To do this calls for constant conservation of the staples,—wheat, meat, sugar, and fats—and unceasing vigilance to see that no food whatever is wasted.

But—"Finish the job right!"

NEW RULE SAVES SUGAR.

Approximately 200,000,000 pounds of sugar will be saved per year by a new ruling of the Food Administration which will prevent any one from obtaining more than two pounds of sugar per month.

Many people were unconsciously breaking the regulation regarding the distribution of sugar by purchasing their sugar on the basis of one-half pound per capita per week. On this basis of four weeks to the month there would be only forty-eight weeks to the year, or three hundred and thirty-six days. This would leave twenty-nine days or practically another month during which sugar would be consumed on a basis of two pounds per capita. With a population of 100,000,000 people this would require about an additional 200,000,000 pounds of sugar. The new regulation which became effective October 15th requires the consumer to purchase his allotment of sugar every 15 days or semi-monthly, rather than every week.

SUBSTITUTE PACKAGES.

In order to facilitate the sale of substitutes with wheat flour the Food Administration will permit the trade to pack corn meal, corn flour, barley flour and oat flour in packages of six and twelve pounds and rye flour in packages of 16 and 32 pounds. This is an amendment to the rule which requires them to be packed in 1, 1½, 3, 5, 10, 25, 50 and 100 pound packages. This amendment applies only as long as the present regulation which requires one pound of substitute to be sold with every four pounds of wheat flour, is in effect.

A six pound package of the first named substitutes may be sold with 24½ pounds of wheat flour, or, if rye flour may be sold as a substitute, a 16-pound package of rye flour may be sold with the 24½ pound bag of wheat flour.

By the time the children are old enough to share the scolding, life is a little easier for father.

NO SLACKENING IN FOOD PROGRAM WARNS HOOVER

Increasing Army and Allies Demands for Food Must Be Met by Stricter Conservation of Foodstuffs Here.

Orono, Maine, Oct.—There is no prospect of a proper ending of the war before the campaign of the summer of 1919," said Herbert Hoover recently. Federal Food Administrator Leon S. Merrill of Maine points out that until the hour that Germany is defeated nothing is more dangerous than to look forward to a slackening of Food Conservation in America. Now more than ever it is vital to push the food drive as Pershing's men are pushing the offensive in France. "To give the the final blow in 1919" said Mr. Hoover, we have not only to find the men, shipping and equipment for this gigantic army of three and a half million American soldiers, but this army, the Allied armies and the Allied civil population must have ample food in the meantime if we are to maintain their strength. We can do all these things and I believe we can bring this dreadful business to an end if every man woman and child in the United States tests every action every day and hour by the one touchstone—does it contribute to the winning of the war?" Mr. Hoover declares most emphatically that the American food program must be stricter during the coming year than it has in the past.

ADVERTISE FOOD NEEDS

There is food propaganda that is super-propaganda; no missionaries are needed to spread it. The American assurance to the Allies of a bigger and better loaf travelled like light and warmed like sunshine. Headlines and billboards were unnecessary, for it was super-propaganda.

There is super-propaganda, too, that chills like November rain; and in spite of German skill in the art of concealment this kind of propaganda is travelling through the enemy country. Here are some want-ads from a Trieste newspaper which tell the story that will not down:

"Iron bed, pair of black trousers, and coat offered in exchange for foodstuffs."

"New novels, large collection, in exchange for five pounds of food."

"Finest stockings, Lady's colored, in exchange for sugar or fats."

"Linen sheet wanted to make into a dress, for cash or maize meal."

"Yellow canary in exchange for a rabbit, Japanese vases for fats or beans."

"A business suit offered in exchange for one pound of fat."

The appropriate answer from America is redoubled effort to make this preponderance of food among the Allies become greater and greater as that of the enemy wanes.

DID THIS HAPPEN ON YOUR FARM?

Following is an extract from a letter received by the U. S. Food Administration from a farmer who believes that conserving farm implements is the first step toward raising more food:

"..... $125 worth of farm machinery stood outside an empty shed. I said to the owner, 'I will help you pull them in.' To which he replied, 'If you don't like the looks of things, you may drive along.'"

In acknowledging the report of this unusual occurrence the Food Administration points out that America's and the Allies' war strength depends in large measures on our exportable reserves of food. Farmers are asked therefore to consider wastage of machinery in a more serious light than in pre-war years, especially in view of shortage and high cost of materials and labor.

Nations which entered the war earlier than the United States fully realize the importance of putting farm implements to the best possible use in addition to conserving the present supply. In Italy, the Minister of Agriculture is authorized to requisition, for the period of the war and for the crop year following the declaration of peace all agricultural machinery and the materials necessary for crop production.

WAR AND MEDICINES

What Many of the Sick and Ailing Are Learning Nowadays.

So many doctors have gone to war, the services of comparatively few are available at home.

Good proprietary medicines are more widely used than ever, and more and more people are finding out how great their merit is.

At this time, when there is greater need of economy than ever before, Hood's Sarsaparilla, a thorough blood purifier, Peptiron, a real pepsin-nux-iron tonic, and Hood's Pills, a potent yet mild cathartic, are especially good. They are liked by all who use them.

These medicines are remarkably efficient, whether taken in conjunction or separately. Sold by all druggists.

Next Door Neighbor Conversation.

Mrs. E. F. Smith: "Yes, it takes a cabbage apiece, they are so small! You ought to see our beets, they are not much larger than a thimble!"

This conversation was said to Mrs. Capt. Whitmarsh, next door neighbor, when Mrs. Smith was coming from the garden bringing in an armful of cabbages to boil for dinner.

Maybe if the Colonel had bore harder on the hoe and burned less gasoline last summer the beets and cabbages would have been larger. Who knows?

We were wrong about New Hampshire falling behind on the Fourth Liberty Loan. Maine papers and others so stated, but it appears the Granite State over subscribed about five millions. An interested reader expended three cents to so inform us.

Fred Gregg and daughter returned Saturday from Pittsburg, Pa., where they went two weeks ago intending to remain permanently. Mr. Gregg will remain in Norway as he reopened his stand on Main street Monday afternoon. He and his daughter will board as the home and household goods were sold before they went away.

The H. F. Webb Co. of Norway and the McWain Packing Co. have been loading part of the season's corn pack at the station this week. A large part of the product was consigned to government shipping points for the army at home and abroad.

A freight car shortage is delaying many shippers and keeping the Norway station agent on the anxious seat. As a rule government orders have a preference in the cars obtainable.

Fiber Containers May Save Tin

Experiments having in view a general substitution of wood fiber containers for tin are to be made by the Forest Service. Relief for a decided stringency in the tin-can market seems possible only through restricting the use of tin to containers of commodities that can not be satisfactorily packed otherwise.

Soldiers' Letters

Extracts from letters written by Sergt. Alfred J. Dyer, Co D, 103 Inf., to his wife, Mrs. Maggie Dyer, Fair street, Norway.

Dear Wife:—Just a few lines to let you know that I am well and hope this will find you and the children the same. I am still in the hospital I expect to leave today. I expect to find a big change as they have done some heavy fighting since I left. There will be a young fellow write to you by the name of Harold Berry, a man I met in the hospital. He has finished with the war as he has been wounded bad. The Boche are getting it hard, and they are bad losers. They are not like the French, they never get disheartened. Their courage is as good as ever. They are determined to win, and I guess they will.

* * * * *

Just a few lines to let you know that I am fine and hope you are all the same. Still in the hospital, but not in Vichy. I got shifted last Saturday, and landed here last night. I expect to be going back to duty soon as I am well and able to go now. I have not seen any of the boys although there were two in Vichey at the time I left.

I saw by the paper that Pinkie and Oscar Vallee were killed. Oscar was Lt. Swett's orderlie and a mighty good boy. There were one or two more but guess you do not know them.

Lieut. Swett is well and is in charge of our battalion as the Major is wounded. Swett is just the man that can do it. The boys will follow him clear to Berlin.

* * * * *

At last I am out of the hospital, and I am at a replacement camp waiting to be shipped back. I drew all new equipment today (Sept. 11) from a tooth brush to a rifle, everything complete. I hope it will not be long for I want to be with the boys. I ran into a few of our boys here. Was with George Dubey last night. He had just come from officers' school.

I am afraid you will have to be alone this winter as I do not see any prospect of my getting home.

* * * * *

At last I am on my way to rejoin my Company, and hope to reach them by tomorrow (Sept. 20) as I am sick of traveling. It is very wet here just now, as it has rained all the week, so it does not help to make it comfortable. I have just knocked into another lad from our Company so will have someone to travel with. Well, dear, what do you think of the drive the Yanks have made? Our Division was right in it, although I was not. Will get there in time for the next one. Have you seen Lester Whitham yet? I just bet he will have a good time in Norway.

I do hope my little Alice is better. I know you will give her the best of care. I cannot but feel upset just the same. Keep me posted how she is. I think the picture of the three chidren looks fine. Westley looks so cunning that anyone could not help loving him.

* * * * *

"Hello, is this 9 ring 2?"

Well, hello, dear, I received your welcome letters, and it was some good news to know you had my money at last.

The boys have been over the top again. It is rumored that we are going to our camp of last winter for quite awhile. I can hardly believe it as the 26 Division has been on all the fronts and been in such a lots of scraps that they really need a rest.

* * * * *

Dear Wife:—I am sending you a few lines to let you know that I am O. K., and hope this will find you and the children the same.

At last I am back in the Company and believe me it does seem good although there are a lot of new faces. I have been back with the Company nearly a week now and this is the first opportunity I have had to write to you, so you can see we are on the move. It has rained hard since I have been here and there is some mud. I have had such a lot of mail this week and do you know that it does seem good to know that you are all well

I got two pictures, one with Wesley and you, and the other with the two boys, and don't they look just cute. I feel proud to own two such boys, and Wesley looks too good for anything. I just bet that he is full of the "Old Nick." He looks it.

You have no idea what I would give to be with them for one hour.

DAYLIGHT SAVING

The daylight saving from March 31 to October 27 has proved its effectiveness as a method of conserving the wealth, the mineral resources and the promotion of agricultural enterprises throughout the season of 1918.

The adoption of the plan of setting the clocks in the country ahead an hour on March 31st and setting them back an hour is attributable to its successful operation in Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany, Holland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Portugal, Austra, Australia, Iceland where great savings in coal had been obtained. It is estimated in the vicinity of one million, five hundred thousand tons of coal was saved in the United States.

Great Britain and Northern European countries have restricted the use of the daylight saving plan to the summer months because the hours of daylight during the remainder of the year are so few as to render the plan impracticable

Nearly all of Europe lies north of the average latitude of the United States, and the northern boundry of this country is farther south than the greater portion of Europe. In every portion of the United States there are much more than eight hours of daylight on even the shortest day of the year. Daylight saving therefore, would be practical in this country throughout the whole year, and the saving effected would be very much greater in the winter than in the summer, as the amount of coal used in this country during the summer months is insignificant when compared with the amount consumed to generate power and light during the winter.

The two changes of time each year will subject railroads, and all other common carriers, to an inconvenience which would be overcome by permanent adoption of present satisfactory standard time.

An act was brought before Congress early in October to continue the existing daylight saving law, but it was decided at a conference between Congressional leaders and chairman of the War Industries Board the original plan be continued On Sunday Oct. 27 the hands of the clock were set back one hour.

WIPED FROM THE EARTH

Judging from the way she writes Mrs. Marilla Ricker of Dover, N. H., and Boston is no pacifist even if she is of the gentler sex and a lawyer:

"Wilson seems to be all right but I was scared stiff." Many wars have been lost after they were won, stolen away by that "cussed" word, Diplomacy. I want Berlin laid in ashes. I've been out to the palaces of that crazy cut throat, "Bill". He has 51. I want them laid in ruins and him hanged. I want the cussed Kaiser and all his belongings wiped off the face of the earth—nothing left to remind anyone that he ever lived. They, the Germans, must be made to forget the past—nothing to remind them of their Kaiser should be spared, not a track left.

Save Paper, Use Market Basket

How many of us appreciate as much as we should the shortage of paper which exists today? This shortage has been brought about through various causes, but the principal one is that the Government wants and must have the commodities which are used in making paper, as well as the man power which it employs.

In our small way and with very little effort we can help in providing the Government with these materials. You ask how? By saving paper. Use a market basket and when you are marketing do not ask to have your cabbages, carrots and celery wrapped, but save that much paper. It is not necessary to have a piece of wrapping paper or a bag placed around your apples, oranges, bananas and lemons, which already have a covering and could be carried home in your market basket.

If thousands of market baskets were used throughout the country, think what an enormous quantity of paper would be saved, and paper saved or paper not used means coal saved; it means chemicals saved, which are needed so badly for munitions; it means sulphur saved for our chemists to use in the manufacturing of poisonous gasses; it means wood saved for shipbuilding; and coal and chemicals and sulphur and wood when manufactured by the Government into munitions and gases and ships are the principal units which will safeguard the lives of our soldiers. So use the market basket and save paper.

The United States has never had much reason for taking up the cultivation of the sugar beet extensively as the plantations of the South and Cuba have been a sufficient source of supply. But if the war were to continue much longer the sugar strengency here could soon be relieved by introduction of sugar beet raising on a large scale. A climate either temperate or semi-tropical is capable of producing the white sugar beet, and we have seen evidence locally that it will grow to large size hereabouts. By raising the material, and having a factory for its conversion into sugar, our community would be independent of the shortage elsewhere or the means of transportation

Be a Joy-Walker, "Gets-It" for Corns

2 Drops, 2 Seconds—Corn Is Doomed!

When you almost die with your shoes on and corns make you almost walk sideways to get away from the pain, take a vacation for a minute or two and apply 2 or 3 drops of the world's magic and only genuine corn-peeler, "Gets-It." Then, and then only, will you be sure that your corn will loosen from your toe so that you can peel it right off gloriously easy with your fingers. Take no chances of continued pain and soreness—why use greasy, irritating salves, plasters that shift and press into the "quick," razors and "diggers" that make corns bleed and also grow faster? Use painless, easy, always sure "Gets-It." There's only one like it in the world—that's "Gets-It." Millions have tried and O. K.'d it for years. It never fails. "Gets-It," the guaranteed, money-back corn-remover, the only sure way, costs but a trifle at any drug store. M'f'd by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

"My Corns Peel Clean Off, With 'Gets-It'"

After dinner

If you feel uncomfortable,—gas pressure, heaviness, sour stomach, drowsy, headache,—take a teaspoonful of that honest, old-time prescription, the original "L.F." Atwood's Medicine. It will relieve you quickly and improve your general condition by cleaning your system of impure accumulations so you won't have any disagreeable attacks. Reckon well the cost of things in these war-thrift times; think how cheap this remedy is at only ONE CENT A DOSE.
